The CUNY Graduate Center has named Duncan Faherty as director of its new Early Research Initiative.

The program will provide doctoral students with chances to conduct research before they begin their dissertations. It will also oversee pre-dissertation competitions and awards.

Faherty is a professor of English and American studies at Queens College and the graduate center.