

CUNY CAREERPATH
REAL-TIME REPORT & SAMPLE JOB ADS
Emergency Medical Technicians (EMT)
SEPTEMBER 2013

Ad Volume. Since August four years ago, a monthly average of 50 jobs has been posted online for emergency medical technicians and paramedics. The vast majority of these ads were for EMT’s and emergency room technicians as opposed to the very few for paramedics. Peak demand was in March 2012, and demand was weakest in May 2011. During 2011 and 2012 demand increased to roughly twice that of demand in 2009 and 2010.

NOTE: The remaining narrative and tables in this report contain the results of a search of online ads for EMT’s and Emergency Room Technicians over the past three months, from June 13 to September 10, 2013. Job ads for paramedics are not included.

Other titles. Other than emergency medical technician, the most commonly advertised job titles were emergency room technician (65) and patient care associate (54).

Job Location. The table to the right lists the top locations for advertised EMT jobs. About 86 percent of advertised jobs listings were in New Jersey. Of the 14 percent (22 ads) in New York State, 15 were in New York City (including Bayside). The others were in Long Island and Westchester. Job developers should consult jobseekers to see if they are willing to take a commute to New Jersey.

Hiring Difficulty. Wanted Analytics scores occupations according to a “hiring scale,” which takes into account the number of current workers in the occupation, the number of employers hiring, local unemployment rates, and pay that is offered, among other factors. According to this scale, emergency medical technicians are very easy for employers to recruit and hire. The average posting period is 47 days.

Wages. Of the ads specifying salary ranges, a majority offered between $39,800 and $48,650 per year.
