This course surveys classic as well as recent approaches to the history of capitalism. The earliest weeks will focus on historically grounded definitions of capitalism as they were formulated in debates over the transition from feudalism to capitalism. We will examine competing explanations for the “great divergence” between Europe and the rest of the world. The course continues to move chronologically to discussions of the consumer revolution of the eighteenth century, the industrial revolution of the late eighteenth and early nineteenth century, and the emergence of finance capitalism in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Various relationships will be considered, between, slavery and capitalism, antislavery and capitalism, capitalism and imperialism, capitalism and freedom, and capitalism and socialism. The course will conclude by examining the “downturn” of the 1970s and debates over the rising maldistribution of wealth in the late twentieth century.

James Livingston, “Theses on Capitalism.”

Sept. 15  No class
Sept. 22  No class
Jan De Vries, The Economy of Europe in the Age of Crisis

Sept. 29  Robert Allen, The British Industrial Revolution in Global Perspective
Oct. 6  Jan De Vries, The Industrious Revolution.

Diedre McCloskey, Bourgeois Dignity, chapter 25

Gavin Wright, Slavery and American Economic Development.

James Oakes, “Capitalism and Slavery and the Civil War”

Oct. 27

Nov. 3 Martin Sklar, The Corporate Reconstruction of American Capitalism

Nov. 10 Michael Bernstein, The Great Depression

Nov. 17 Judith Stein, Pivotal Decade

Dec. 8 Steve Fraser, The Age of Acquiescence