Education:

M.A., Applied Quantitative Research, New York University, 2016

B.A., Economics, New York University, 2009

Research Interests:

Primarily interested in quantitative research on migration, particularly state and local policy in the United States and comparing the experiences of immigrants and racial minorities in traditional and new destinations of the United States, especially the American South. Outcomes of interest have included social and associational life, labor market outcomes, and mental health. Additional areas of study include higher education and gender and sexuality.

Research Experience:

Research Assistant – CUNY – Supervisor: Paul Attewell – Nov 2016–Present

Analyzing and managing data for a research project funded by the Gates Foundation on early indicators of college completion and early labor market outcomes.

Research Assistant – CUNY – Supervisor: Mary Clare Lennon – Aug 2016–Aug 2017

Performing research as well as providing assistance with survey and sampling design for a project studying the effects of affordable homeownership on social capital, ontological security, and other outcomes. After data collection, will aid in quantitative analysis.

Applied Quantitative Research Master's – NYU – Advisor: Amanda Geller – Sep 2015–Aug 2016

Performed quantitative research on the impact of state-level immigration policy on the civic engagement and mental health of immigrant and racial/ethnic minority communities. Specifically, evaluating the impacts of Proposition 187 in California, SB 1070 in Arizona, and similar legislation.

Research Assistant – NYU – Supervisor: Florencia Torche – Feb 2015–Aug 2016

Performed data management and analysis for a quantitative research project for Professor Torche related to state-level immigration policy and birth outcomes.

Research Assistant – NYU – Supervisor: Paula England – Oct 2015–Aug 2016

Aiding in qualitative research and analysis for sexual behavior project. Project centers around interviews regarding unwanted sex on college campus.
